

AKVIS Coloriage 13.0: New Tuning Brush & Redesigned User Interface

July 14, 2021 – AKVIS is happy to announce the major update of AKVIS Coloriage, legendary photo coloring software. Version 13.0 provides the brand new Tuning Brush to improve the result of automatic colorization, the redesigned user interface, support for more RAW files, as well as bug fixes and stability improvements.

AKVIS Coloriage is the easiest way to colorize b&w photos and replace colors in color photos. The program allows coloring images both manually and in automatic mode by assigning colors using bounding strokes. In addition to coloring old photos, the program is useful for performing selective desaturation or coloring, adding colors to digital illustrations, applying targeted color correction, and much more!

AKVIS Coloriage 13.0 includes the new premium feature - the Tuning Brush tool that lets users improve the result of automatic colorization. This smart color retouching tool blends color tints and recolors images keeping texture and volume. It helps to modify colors, edit the colorization edges, get rid of odd tones, add color variability, mix adjacent colors to make the result look more interesting and more alive.

The user interface has been redesigned with new icons in the top panel and a new visual style. The Notifications panel has been entirely modified as well to look more modern and customer friendly. Also, the update provides the new History Brush option, new program icon, extended list of supported RAW formats, fixed bugs and improved stability.
